A full-page photograph of Lorde standing on a large, moss-covered tree branch in a dense forest. She is wearing a long, black, double-breasted coat with white cuffs. Her long, wavy brown hair is down. She is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. The background is filled with bare tree branches and some green foliage, suggesting an autumn or winter setting. The lighting is natural, highlighting the textures of the tree bark and the woman's coat.

Liv Thurley

"On Wednesdays, we wear pink" – this Mean Girls mantra inspired London's Liv Thurley to create PINKD, a book of artist responses to a colour with an image problem. "In the 17th century, pink was popular as a gender-neutral colour worn by European fashion elites," she says. "Now it's heavily associated with one gender: female." But PINKD proves pink can be tough. "It's tough to wear, it's tough to pull off... and, most importantly, it's tough to ignore."
